WHOLESALE MARKETS.

A Review of the Business of the Wholesalers.

SYRUP AND SUGAR TAKE A TUMBLE.

The Market in General is Firm, but Trade is Only Fair—Game is Very Scarce and Commands Good Prices. Wheat is Low.

The local markets this week show very little startling transitions. The majority of goods are held firm in price, while the market is dull. The only changes in the grocery markets are in sugar and syrups. Syrups declined 2 to 5 cents and sugar dropped off 1-16 cent. The flour market is firm at unchanged quotations. The London flour markets have advanced, but the London reviewers think the advance is not justified by the prevailing opinions.

The grain markets are practically unchanged as to prices, and all grain passing through local dealers' hand is western shipments. The low price of wheat and the stiff figure at which corn is held makes the sale of wheat unprofitable to the producers, and in many instances farmers are feeding it instead of corn. The supply of corn and oats is equal to the demand, and the volume of business being done is considered fair, compared with the prevailing condition of business and the hard times. Hay has taken a drop, and is coming into the market quite freely. One dealer said that the amount of hay was somewhat surprising, as the drought last summer was thought to have reduced the amount of hay harvested.

The demand for poultry for the Christmas season is good, but the open weather has made it impossible for dealers to ship extensively. Eggs have also been influenced by the weather, as the cold storage people are reducing their stocks, and the uncertainty as to the character of the product on sale had the effect of weakening the demand. Butter is unchanged in price, and a good article meets with ready sale. Oranges are scarce in the local market, and the demand has raised prices.

The demand for game is good, but the local market has been neglected by shippers and the prices are high. The venison market has been supplied for some time by West Virginia shippers, but lately the supply has been equal to the normal consumption. Pheasants are very scarce and quail are also in demand. The market has had to depend on Louisville and Chicago for its supply and frequently it has been impossible to secure the orders. Rabbits and squirrels are also in demand.

The live stock market shows a steady condition for cattle, and hogs are somewhat weaker than last week. Sheep and lambs are only moderate. Wool is unchanged and the demand continues light.

The Recent Hospital Benefit.

The success attending the recent supper and bazaar given by the Woman's Hospital Association for the benefit of the City Hospital, was something little short of phenomenal. The sum cleared was $1,124 64, a very large amount for a three days' entertainment, and speaks well for the liberal patronage a discriminating public bestows on this worthy object. The ladies in another column express their thanks to those who worked so faithfully to insure the success of the benefit.

SHEFF BROS., the jewelers, 1110 Main street, have again increased their force of salesmen, in order to accommodate the large number of holiday buyers who daily crowd their store to purchase the bargains they are offering in Diamonds, Watches, Silverware, etc.

MINER ARRESTED.

A Released Man is Arrested on Another Charge—Particulars Not Known.
A coal miner formerly employed at the Wheeling creek coal works, who was recently released from prison after serving a six months' sentence for interfering with the coal trains during the miners' strike last June, was arrested yesterday on another charge for alleged lawlessness during those troubles. It is understood that the other three who were sent up with him will also be arrested on the same charge and that two of the men wanted, the Heldt boys, have disappeared, they having learned that warrants were out for their arrest. One of the men wanted was in Wheeling yesterday. The character of the last charge is not known. Brominsky is the name of the miner arrested.

GUNDLING'S

Unapproachable Neckwear.

A man's Neckwear is often his hobby, and properly, too. Nothing more conducive to his good looks than tidiness about his neck, nothing more repulsive than frouziness.

Those nobby new effects in FOUR-IN-HANDS, TEGKS and CLUB TIES comprise the most attractive fall showing we've ever made, and still it's a 50-CENT showing—as grand an array of 50-cent creations as you'd ever expect to see for more fastidious tastes. We have the finest English and French Silks, all of them talk and our customers will talk about them—they can't help it; they are our best salesmen. Our stock of Christmas Furnishings is bristling with beauties.
